Now in its second year as a Bolgheri Superiore wine, the 2013 Bolgheri Superiore Piastraia shows a deep sense of inner elegance and feminine grace. I love the bouquet on this wine that has energy and intensity, but also feels lightweight and crisp at the same time. In fact, I would suggest serving it a degree or two lower than average serving temperature to bring the little details to light. Wild berry and dried cherry are followed by spice, pressed violets and wet earth. The tannins are very silky and long. Piastraia is equal parts Merlot, Cabernet Sauvignon, Sangiovese and Syrah aged in oak for 18 months.

Michele Satta continues his magnificent winemaking experience on the Tuscan Coast with this excellent lineup of new releases. This year, you might notice the refreshed label designs.
